A telegram from San Francisco furnishes unother example of the "indirect method" is practiced by the democratic national administration. Orders have been given for the suspension of sliver coinage in the United States b such mint and for the dismiss it of a large force en gaged in the silver de sattment. It is given out the this action is for the sake of economy, but the humbug of this preteres is manifest from the fact that the government is required by law to come a specified number of silver dollars evely month. If comage is suspended or reduced at San Francese, it west to be creased at other diency of I rying all dedicated afrects made fit mints and there will be no saving. The cost for tirvel just as first is the ewners of property will be the same whether the work he done at San Francisco, New Offenne or Philadelphi and it cannot be reduced by shutting down one or even two of those institutions The San I rangue mint employs several hundred men, and most of them are repul vans who were given places before the civil service risings. Since the law came into effect it has been honestly observed, and all recent appoint political character or to partisan influence hanges, however, have not been many, and the age at San Francisco is as well and cheaply fone as elsewhere. There has been no thievery

But the democratic managers say that they cannot "redeem" (alifornia without the federal patronage, and the bulk of this is in the nint, and so the mint has been "gone for" it appears successfully. To openly turn out the present temployes and fill their places with democrats, was not to be thought of, but a plan involving the sane result was concocted and the first move has been made. Coinage will be suspended and several hundred employes will be suspended and several hundred employes will be dismissed, all in the interest of "economy" and the country will be called upon to appland a time say of the context property and the country will be called upon to appland a time say of the residents or owners on either side of the residents or owners on either side of the formation of streets trouble set. natronage, and the bulk of this is in the nunt. course promising a large saving. Pretty soon the "public exigencies" will require the starting up of the mint again and then the faithful will be rewarded. The job will be accomplished, the "ine" will be out and the "outs" will be in, all under the cloak of economy And how will the interests of economy be served by this course?

The saving will be nothing, for the specified two millions of silver dollars must be coined at one or another of the government mints. On the other hand, there will be upon the resumption of work at San Francisco a great crowd of raw workmen chosen for other qualities than skill in the business in hand. The cost of leaching this new force will be upon the government, and it will not be light. How much would n cost the Central Pacific railroad to exchange the corps of skilled men in its shops at Sacramento for a new and mexperienced force. A quarter of a million dollars, perhaps, and it will cost the government quite as much to set the wheels to going properly with a new force in the min!

And this is aconomy

While putting himself on high moral ground the president has taken good care to surround himself with 'wicked partners' A professional New York politician and a proved corrupnonlet has the great power of the treasury de the way to 'do the most good' Fer what purpose should Daniel Manning be given the thef place in the cabinet if not to wield its power for partisan ende? (ertainly there was not in the man a suggestion of himess for the high jegitimate duties of the position. These which develand is pleaded against, but which develand is pleaded against, but which nevertheless, he approves By one means or another in the with the an Francisco mint job, they are filling up the public service m all its branches with me and thus paid for party work And Cleveland, disregarding his solemn promises, approves all. All this would not be so ead but for its dainnable hypecrisy While it might not be possible to approve, it would be possible to respect an administration which for party advantage made case of all its opportunities, but for an administration which gives the he to its promises and even to its deeds, which lacks both conscience rage, it is impossible to cherish of her feeling than contempt.

OFFENSILE PARILSANS

If by the expression "offensive partisans were meanf those who use their offices for po-litical ends, no one, not himself an offensive partian, would object to the thorough ext rpa-tion of that class of officials from the federal service. Thus, the Philadelpt in Press a radical republican paper, says "as the best republican doctrine, and is an essential feature of the car l service reform movement, which got its chine and almost its entire support in and one of on grees from republicans. If President Clevelant will remove all who have clearly prestituted a public office to promote purly unds, he will be serve the thanks of all right-thinking citizens, r gardless of party. A public office is a public time—not a piece of party machinery? tion—not a piece of party machinery.

The New York Itmes, a representative of the civil service reformers, says. There is no roun

But while the putfix are perfectly willing and

When tracts cwined by private individuals are sought su h tructs instigate the passing of an ordinance to run a street through their neighbors lands, their ordinarily follows a suit, for the reason that the owners of sect to have their property dismembered for the benefit of such as pay nothing therefor, more especially when, as a often the case, the making of such street would vidual private properties.

In another respect there is need for amend. ment of the municipal lines relating to public thoroughfaces. At present when a street is to be firmed, sidewalked or macademized it is on matthe charge of the owners of the property fromg upon n. This is probably an equitable irrangement. But from it have spring in equalities of taxation, hardships and injust e. It will be remembered that when Third street was first macadamized, some four years ago, the traffic was directed immediately from all adjacen) indied streets onto it. It became the general living and hading ground north at equalitation of the city and made of the years. it was practically destroyed, at least at the were red. Little street in ide later came near to sharing the sum frie, and the result was in riganized opposition to the forming and macrimizing from the transverse. The remedy for this evil is the making all streets after ince-properly formed, salewalked and macadanized, a charge upon the general fund. Such is the procedure in most great cities, and it is the mly equitable one streets when made are used by all people able, whether resident in the city of from the country. Under the present system. the more enterprising the owners of property on any particular street, the more time mul ther turden of taxation. Let the streets when properly made become the special charge of the city then there will be but infrequent opnosi ton to the making of them, and if property cared for after the making, the streets will speedily be all good, to the infinite a frantage of all residents and comers as well as a great beau titication of the city would appear more equitable to levy on all properties I ing along the streets that would be

OUR COASE DEFENCES

The complacency with which some of our leading journals view the war cloud hovering over Europe and the confident way in which they ascert that America, with so many thousand miles of ocean rolling between her shores and the armies and prives of the tarbulent old world, has nothing to fear from any complications bas nothing to leat from any companions which may arise in that direction, naturally prompt to the question whether they really believe what they so, or if they do believe it, how they can have been so short algebred and foolish as to arrive at such a courbs on. What, for in stance are a thousand miles of sea to a modern war-ship? The naty of any one of the great European powers could open a bombardment after receiving sating orders. And what could be done, in the meantime, to provide against such an attack. Absolutely nothing. We have, practically, no coast defences worth mentioning. Our many would be less after the form Our many would be less effective for purposes of resistance than a fleet of Chinese luggers resistance than a fleet of Chinese luggers. BODY RECOVERED - The body of Frank Duler, the bast Portland lad who was drowned lear Shaver's incline Saturday evening, was recovered by grapping about 10 o'clock yesterday morning. The accident happened as follows.
He dared a boy named Arthur Bell, two years older than himself, to cross the river in an old, leaky skiff. Bell answered. "I can go whereever you can," and the two started out. A brisk northwest wind prevailed, rocking the boat, which soon began to fill. To those who saw the hoat from shore, it looked as if she would go down but it is likely that the swell of the I urline made matters a little werse. Men on the ship M. & E. Cov saw the accident and lowered a boat, which capsized immediately, so spectators say who saw it.
Young Burkee floundered in the water a while and sank. Bell clung to the skiff and was pleked up by a sail boat coming up from Albina. The
